Earth below and heaven above
Can he sing of naught but love?
O, perplexity' my books
But reflect her haunting looks!
Take me and my lyre on high
Lo! the stars beneath me gleam
1 Here, O, poet!
is a theme. THE NIGHT-STORM AT SEA.
Lo! the full moon rears her form
Mid the cloud-rifts of the storm,
And, athwart.

That the Maker of all worlds, the Arbiter of all destinies, should lay aside His glory and humiliate Himself from love to man will ever excite the wonder and adoration of the universe. All the revelations that came to light at the end were fantastic.

In conjunction with this, there is the concern of war for the kingdom, the quest for an ordinary job and a steady check. It is Margaret Atwood at her best. This, then, is the story of the kingdom they built, and the knight who would decide its fate.
